PLAN SHOW TRAIN TO BOOST COUNTY

Want 10 Carloads of Livestock for Extended Fair Circuit.

By LEWIS C. FLENNCH

AGRICULTURAL and livestock authorities are watching with keen interest the progress of Rock county. Saturday evening the Farm Bureau and breeders of the county will determine the policy to be followed this summer and fall to carry on the progressive development work. Rock county cannot afford to stand still or lag in its progress of holding its place as "Rock county first." Plans have been prepared to collect the greatest assembly of livestock farm products possible for exhibition and demonstration.

The success with the county show herd last year, which was backed by the banks and newspapers of the county, has only stimulated breeders to carry on and extend the program.

Big County Exhibit. If present plans mature, Rock county will be at a series of fairs, both inter-county, state and interstate, with around 10 carloads of blooded livestock, and to again tackle the livestock business—the Chicago International. The present program is for around 75 head of dairy cattle, Holsteins, Milking Shorthorns, Jerseys, Brown Swisses, and Guernseys, to be formed under a county herd pool system. In addition, a representative exhibit is wanted for the best breeds, the five breeds of swine, sheep, and also an exhibit of the famous blooded horses.

"The greatest thing farmers of Rock county ever did to make a reputation for this county was the show held at the 1922 international," say the breeders. "It put the county right in the front rank and brought business here, not so much for the registered breeders but for the grade breeder, for the biggest demand today is for quality grade females and good registered herd sires."

There is but one progressive way to develop sales and that is by advertising and going out to show what you have got. And they'll stop some to beat Rock county this year."

Individual breeders have not the time or money to exhibit their good stock beyond the county fairs. Every farmer who has one or more animals that stand a chance to win in fair competition will be urged to join in the 1923 Rock county show herd.

Dread associations backing the proposed plan want the best animals in the county, regardless of ownership, to compete for fair honors. The county has the opportunity to obtain the services of one of the best livestock men in the country, who seeks to come to Rock because "it is up and coming."

Both the Holstein and Milking Shorthorn associations have signified their intention of joining in for the Rock county demonstration train, and breeders of Guernseys, Jerseys, Red Shorthorns and Brown Swisses show a desire to join.

The proposed fair schedule is in states now buying livestock to diversify farming, and if the dairy stock is in proper condition, the cream of the exhibit will be taken to the National Dairy show for premier honors.

Within the last year more good animals have been purchased by Rock county farmers than ever before. These animals, together with those produced and raised on the farms here, will strengthen greatly the herds to represent the county.

Advertise County. The real value of county show herds is not blue ribbons or show honors, but in the fact that such exhibits do more than anything else to put values and increase sales on all stock produced within the county. Nor is the plan limited to livestock. Funds have been appropriated by the county board for a fair booth in which growers of grain, corn, clover, lucerne, forage crops, the producers of honey and fruit can make an exhibit attracting state-wide attention.

In the event the Rock County Fair program goes through, every farmer who produces a quality product in the livestock line, or field product, will be asked to contribute his share to making Rock the blue ribbon county of the state.

Breeders of show stock around Wisconsin are watching to see what Rock county will do, and Rock cannot afford not to come through.

DELEGATES FOR THE BIG HOLSTEIN MEETING. Wisconsin's largest livestock interests will be represented by nineteen delegates at the thirty-eighth annual convention of the Holstein-Friesian association of America when it convenes in Cleveland, Ohio June 6th. Among the delegates elected by ballot by the 3000 members residing in Wisconsin are:

T. H. Peterson, Jefferson; A. P. Kaye and John G. Voss, Watworth; J. A. Craig, Rock; Theodore Lehman, Watworth; J. W. Jones, Milton Junction.

HOTELMEN PLAN TO STANDARDIZE CHINA. Washington—American hotels which now use 700 different types of chinaware will hereafter use but the if an agreement reached at the department of commerce today is carried into effect. The Vitified China associations and the American Hotel association called into the department's campaign to extend standardization practices in industry, have worked out a program acceptable to all those concerned.

PARALYZED MAN FOUND IN BOX-CAR

William Coyne, Janesville, Is Rescued from Train at Madison.

William Coyne, a man about 42, and a brother of E. L. Coyne, 214 North Bluff street, Janesville, is in the Dane county poor house at Madison, recovering from a stroke of paralysis. He was found by Madison police some three weeks ago in a box car in the Northwestern yards in a helpless condition and unable to give the police any information. It is believed he had either been put into the car by someone after he suffered the stroke which paralyzed one side, or had been riding in the car when taken ill.

Madison police called the attention of Peermaster Max Semmler, Madison, to Coyne's condition and the latter was removed to the poor house. Mr. Semmler said Thursday that the man is slowly recovering but is unable to articulate, and has been able only recently to write the name and address of his brother in Janesville.

It was said at the Coyne residence that the man is uneducated, a cobbler by trade, and has not been seen in Janesville for two years. He will be kept at the Dane county institution until he fully recovers, providing he is not a flock county charge.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Editor Gazette:

The citizens of that portion of North Washington street lying between Magnolia avenue and the cemetery do respectfully invite the county highway commission, city council, Supt. Moore or whoever was responsible for the geographic layer of sand that was placed on that stretch of road, so they may fully realize the result of their work.

It certainly has not tended to improve the temper of our housewives, nor elevated the grammar of our men. We may not know much about road work, but it is our united opinion that of all the bum jobs ever perpetrated in the line of road work, that certainly is IT, and we are asking relief from the same, so we can open our doors and windows to let in some of God's pure, fresh air, which at present we are denied. If the road authorities will only pay us a visit, we will provide the charges against him.

Mr. Zabel followed Miss Irene Carney, stenographer, and Gerald McDonough and George Petrol, newspaper men, witnesses for the defense.

Both men declared Mr. Zabel made the investigation of the Ertzstadt-Baum case at their solicitation and that they had urged him to visit Mrs. Borstadt-Luther at a sanitarium.

CARD OF THANKS. We desire to thank the Sisters, Nurses and Physicians of Mercy Hospital for the many kindnesses shown during the illness and death of our son and brother.

Look At Your Hands
You can keep them white and lovely even though you do your own work—a new idea in a household soap.

What a story hands can tell! Some women's hands tell a story of the kitchen, of the scrubbing pail. Others, a story of good-grooming. You can have whichever you may choose, just because you do your own work is no reason all the world should be taken into the secret.

Few Cents a Month for Lovely Hands! 3 housewives in 4 have ugly hands because of harsh laundry soaps. Most contain 25% to 40% water glass—a skin wrecker. A chemical analysis of 28 popular household soaps revealed that 27 contained this "filler" or adulterants.

Now we offer gentlewomen a pure soap for household work. A soap as fine as a toilet soap—yet a quicker and safer cleanser than old-time laundry soap. Its name is Green Arrow. And it keeps hands pretty. It costs a few cents more a month to use it. For you should figure soap cost per month, not per bar. Good soap lasts longer.

For One Week! Obtain a bar of Green Arrow at your grocer's. Then in one week, look at your hands. What you see will be a revelation. Green Arrow Soap comes in two forms—Cake Soap, for general household use—Chips (or flakes) for laundry and fine fabrics. Both offer you unusual advantages.

Janesville May be on St. Paul Route—Plan Cross-Country Service.

The May number of the U. S. Official Postal Guide has just been received at the local post office. This number is officially dedicated to the Air Mail Service.

The Air Mail Service of the postal department has plans for a cross-country route to establish a high speed service between New York City and San Francisco, nearly 3,000 miles. The schedule time is 28 hours; 1000 miles of the fly to be at night. The schedule is to be put in operation in July or August. It is as follows:

Leave New York City at noon; arrive in Chicago at dusk; another pilot immediately leaves Chicago, leaving the setting sun, and reaches Cheyenne at dawn. Another pilot with another plane will take the mail at Cheyenne over the Rockies and down the slope to San Francisco in the afternoon.

Air mail service has been in operation since May 15, 1912. Two million miles annually now are covered by it. Emergency fields are provided every 35 miles along the route and lighted.

If the St. Paul route is taken, Janesville will be on it. The local postmaster has called the attention of the postmaster general to the possibility of obtaining a landing field here.

Lodge to Fight Tax on Property

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Oskosh—The trustees of the local lodge of Elks have brought suit against C. H. Larrabee, as county treasurer, and the city of Oskosh, to set aside an illegal tax levied against the premises of the lodge for the year 1922. The claim is made that the lodge is a fraternal society operating under the lodge system, and that as long as it is not used for profit, but exclusively for its own purposes, it is exempt from taxation under the statute. Judge J. L. McDonald of the circuit court has granted a temporary injunction restraining the county treasurer from selling the premises at the annual tax sale for delinquent taxes, to be held June 1, 1923. Hearing has been set for June 5.

I'd advertise that I would undertake to upholster that living room set and furnish draperies to match. I would make the old davenport look like new. By clever upholstery

I would go to people's homes with samples of material and would make an estimate on the work to be done.

Of course I would advertise with Janesville Gazette and News Ads. They're the best business

Henry Ford and an American Police Force.

Henry Ford who went to Sweden on a nice mild boat in 1915 to get the "boys out of the trenches before Christmas" has switched from his position of a pacifist to a belief in the need of American policing the world. In a copyrighted dispatch an interview with Mr. Ford is given in which he says that he is neither for the world court nor the League of Nations.

"The time soon may come when America will have to police the world. We can do little to help the people of Europe now. Until they do more to help themselves we can do less with our money in Europe than ever."

"I am not afraid that the development of our navy and our air force will make this country a militaristic nation. No man hates war more or has more hearty dislike for military trappings than I, but there are times in every community when it is plain that policemen are needed and I think that is true in the world right now."

The idea of a police force for the world to keep it in order is the very basis of the League of Nations and the one big, outstanding reason why the United States refused to accept the League covenant as written at Versailles. But the League of Nations plan for a police was for all nations, parties to the covenant to furnish the police. Henry Ford, the great statesman, has a new plan. He does not like the League of Nations but he is willing that the United States should police the whole world. To do this we would need an immense army and a greater navy than we have ever contemplated or the most emphatic militarist has ever contemplated. Europe has a greater army now than ever in its history in times of general peace. There is no war in Europe, yet the armies of that continent total 4,354,000 men against 3,747,000 in 1913. The great powers have not contributed so much to this as have the new and lesser nations. For instance, Finland furnished 30,000 men for the Russian army in 1913 and now, as a separate republic, has 120,000 men in arms. Rumania and Poland have large armies. England, France and Italy contribute less than a million men. Germany is eliminated in the present calculation. Therefore, if Mr. Ford would police the world and wanted to enforce an order in Poland, he might have his hands full in a minute. He would be leaving war every day. As a man who hates war he would have more war than Julius Caesar ever carried on. It is another Ford absurdity. The United States will probably not respond very keenly to the suggestion of a world police.

Mr. Ford will come around to the Harding idea of preparedness after awhile—to maintain an army for national defense and be on the alert in home waters with a decent sized and perfectly equipped navy and above all a highly trained and thoroughly efficient air force. Under Mr. Harding we remain at home attending to our business; under Mr. Ford we take a few million "police" known as the American army, and settle the rumpus between Greece and Turkey and other nations, by shooting at both and getting on the casualty list ourselves in large numbers.

There is not much left of the Ku Klux Klan now but the clucks.

Before Henry Ford runs for president he will have to learn to play golf.

Troubles in Oklahoma.

"Every time I see an American Legion button I want to shoot a hole in it," is a sentence from the contributions to literature, of George Wilson, new president of the Oklahoma Agricultural and Mechanical college, and likely to upset the entire equilibrium of the government of that state. The agricultural society of Oklahoma elected Wilson to the presidency over the united protest of the Legion and others who were not at all in harmony with the views of the new president of the school on the subject of American patriotism, or anything else. Mr. Wilson is a nonpartisan leaguer and his sentiments in reference to the Legion are a part of the curriculum of that body. Wilson has neither the education nor training for the place to which he has been elected. He has been a soap box orator, an organizer of the nonpartisan league and was one of the men who got into difficulties at Salina, Kansas, two years ago, according to a correspondent of the Kansas City Star.

In order to make a place for Wilson, one of the leading agricultural educators of the nation, Mr. Eskjyge, was forced to resign.

Citizens of the town of Stillwater and students of the college who protested the appointment of the disciple of Townley to the place, were insulted by the governor and told to go home. In Oklahoma they call the re-made North Dakota society the "Farmer-Labor Reconstruction League" and Wilson was the chief organizer. The members, who are in politics, are in the main neither farmers nor laborers. That is the way with many of these organizations. They hitch the name of "farmer" and "laborer" together for political purposes and led by back politicians the real farmers and laborers are as badly bungled as though they bought wild cat oil stocks. The governor of Oklahoma is hearing from his appointment of Wilson. The whole state is fired with anger. Prexy Wilson has not yet shot a hole through an American Legion button. He is not likely to do so. One may be able to picture a person capable

Ambiguity Begets Lawsuits

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Washington.—An excellent example of the importance of using precise and illuminating language to convey an intended meaning is furnished in the branch bank case now pending before the supreme court of the United States. This case, which is in the form of a lawsuit between the State of Missouri and the First National Bank in St. Louis, is costing thousands of dollars and consuming a vast amount of time of the supreme court, of lower courts, of bank officials, and of lawyers.

Section 5139 of the Revised Statutes of the United States says: "The usual business of each national banking association shall be transacted at an office or banking house located in the place specified in its organization certificate."

This is the loose, unprecise language which has caused all the trouble. The question is: when the law says "an office or banking house" does it mean merely one office or banking house and when it says "in the place" does it mean definitely a single location.

The national banks of the country hold that the law means to permit national banks to open as many branches as they desire in as many places and that the use of the words "an office or banking house" is merely typical of the sort of business which may be done.

The state governments and state banks and trust companies, the competitors of national banks, take the other view and contend that the language means to authorize but a single banking house at a single place for each national bank.

What the controversy proves is that the framers of the law should have been clear in their language. If Congress had intended to authorize banks the law should have read: "offices or banking houses." If it meant absolutely to limit the activities of the institutions, it should have enacted a law reading "one office or banking house."

Grammarians and various authorities can furnish plenty of precedent to show that the articles "an" and "a" lack a precise meaning. In fact they are called "indefinite articles." They may mean one or many. They are not precise, not limiting and it is costing the government of the United States, of several states, and the banks thousands of dollars to find this out.

For instance a law will say "A bank may discount a note or sell a bill of exchange." No one would argue for a moment that this meant that the bank could, in the course of its whole career, discount but one note or sell one bill of exchange. This would be an absurdity. Yet use of the indefinite article as describing a typical action would be perfectly proper although not perfectly clear. Another law may say: "A corporation earning over $1,000,000 a year is subject" to such and such taxes. No one would argue for a moment that this meant that only one single corporation out of the whole country should be taxed. The law means that all corporations in excess of the sum of $1,000,000 in this manner, but it is only in this national bank case that the matter has come to a head in a suit.

This case started when the First National Bank in St. Louis decided that nothing in the law forbade the opening of branches and proceeded to open a branch in St. Louis. At the same time it announced it would open others later. The Attorney General of the State of Missouri immediately brought suit to quiet the bank from its branch and enjoin it against opening others. The Missouri courts upheld the contentions of the Attorney General of the State and ordered the bank to give up its branch and open no others. The bank then appealed to the supreme court of the United States. That is where the case rests now. The court has heard the arguments on both sides of the case and is considering its decision in the matter. The decision may be handed down at this time, but possibly may be delayed until next fall.

As an indication of the widespread importance of this case which turns on the question of what the language used means, nine states of the Union have intervened and filed briefs and two other national banks—the National City Bank of New York and the National Bank of Commerce in New York—also have come into the case. The nine states are on the side of the state of Missouri and the two national banks are on the side of the St. Louis bank. The states all read the law as meaning a limitation to one bank and the banks all read the law as being indefinite and meaning any number of banks. The supreme court must decide.

In such cases, the court seeks to ascertain what was the intent of Congress when it passed the law. It is obvious from the existence of the lawsuit that Congress did not say just what it meant; therefore the problem is to find out from sources other than the law itself, just what Congress meant to say and failed.

For instance, the states assert that Congress meant that national banks should not have branches because, in the cases of the world's fair at Chicago and St. Louis, congress passed acts authorizing branch banks to be opened inside the fair grounds. It is pointed out that Congress would not have thought it necessary to pass these acts to authorize these specific branches if national banks, as a matter of course, under the original law, had such a right. But to this the banks make the plausible argument, that in both cases, the fair grounds were under control of federal commissions and that it was necessary to pass such acts to permit banks to open branches upon what was, for the duration of the expositions, federal territory.

The strongest argument in favor of the states' contention that Congress did not mean national banks to have branches is that the law is silent concerning them. No law is provided for the regulation of branch banks. This furnishes a strong presumption that Congress intended the original law to limit the banks to one place of business or the regulations it has provided for such places would have been extended to cover branches. Also, proposals have been made in Congress specifically to authorize national banks to have branches. No such proposal ever has been enacted into law. To this the banks can reply that Congress passed no such law because it was unnecessary, the original law already permitting branches. But that does not harmonize with the record of proceedings in Congress. The record shows that the speeches made and votes taken were against the idea of branch banks. However this may be decided, the fact remains that the whole case is an interesting lesson in the importance of clear language. The simple change of the article "a" to the word "one" in the original law, if that was the meaning intended, would have obviated this whole elaborate proceeding.

Nothing in the whole state is of more importance than that the fight being waged against animal tuberculosis should be continued.

THE HAPPIEST FISHERMAN
Oh, it's good to go out fishing when the skies are blue above.
It's good to go out fishing with a pal you've learned to love.
It's good to watch the clouds go by and hear the singing stream.
It's good to give your soul a rest away from hissing steam.
But when a man's a father, then the utmost peak of joy
Is fishing in the river with a wide-eyed, happy boy.

Oh, I have fished with fishermen and waded brooks for trout,
And I have heard the tales they tell when all the stars are out.
And I have heard the wise old men, the grizzled men and gray,
Who know the stories of the streams, and that was yesterday.
But I'm a young boy's father now, and truth be told, it is I tell
It's glorious to go fishing with the boy you love so well.

It's good to see his eyes aglow and hear his shouts of glee.
It's good to hear him want to know the name of every tree.
It's good to watch him row the boat and see his muscles bend,
There's joy in everything he does until the trip shall end.
And happy is that fisherman, though luck be good or bad,
Who's had a day of honest sport and shared it with his lad.

There's something in a fishing trip which can't be told in rhyme.
It seems to heal the hurts we've met and soothe the running streams and singing brooks and shining seas of blue.
Restore the faltering strength of man and all his hopes renew.
But when a man's a father and his boy is at his side,
Then whether luck be good or bad, that day will long abide.

ON THE SPUR OF THE MOMENT

By ROY K. MOULTON.

The beauty expert who looks after our complexion, eyebrow plucking and general appearance is much exercised over a discovery in the paper of the fact that some scientists who have been making excavations at Carthage have found that the women 2,600 years ago used cosmetics, face stretchers, and eyebrow pencils. The scientists have discovered the following:
Cosmetics used by Carthaginian women.
Ivory pencils for darkening eyebrows.
Perfume atomizers.
Nails and face powder of various tints.
Lip sticks.
Bronze mirrors.
Toilet water bottles of vivid iridescent glass.
Now, says our beauty expert, "wouldn't that just said you? There ain't nothing new about it, nothing. Every time we invent something these noisy old scientists go and dig up something just like it. It hurts business. Women go after these fads because they think they are new. When they find out that Cleopatra doled out herself up with the kind of cosmetics you are of it for life. For them old girls, according to the prints was not so much to look at, you know. Let the dead past bury their dead and keep 'em buried. That's my motto. I can't sell dope that the old dolls used 2,600 years ago."

Nobody believes in advertising, yet many a high-toned doctor telephones to the best hotels and has himself plucked in the dining rooms and lobbies.

Who's Who Today

SENATOR EDW. L. EDWARDS.

The coming of Senator Edward Irving Edwards, democrat, of New Jersey, to the senate next December will give real joy to the anti-prohibitionists in Congress. There is a feeling among the "down-town" wets that Edwards, but the courage to say what he thinks on the issue. Just what Edwards can do for them, if willing, remains to be seen.

Senator Edwards defeated Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, republican, giving him a great surprise, for he had extended invitations to friends in Washington to a reception jubilee.

Edwards is a product of New Jersey. He was born Dec. 1, 1862, at his father, William W. Edwards, was a native of Wales, and his mother, Emma J. Edwards, came from England.

Educated in the public schools of Jersey City and New York university. He studied law in the office of his brother, the late William D. Edwards, but quit in the middle of his course to accept a position with the First National Bank of New York City. After seven years he resigned to get out more and build up his health. He became a contractor, in the name of Edwards Brothers. He served as clerk to the Martin act commission and became an authority on taxation. In 1913 he returned to the First National Bank at the request of the president, Edward F. C. Young, and became assistant director and president. He is now head of the bank.

Edwards was elected comptroller of the treasury of New Jersey in 1911. In 1912 he was a candidate for state treasurer, but was defeated because of a split in the democratic party, causing the governor, Woodrow Wilson, to oppose him.

LOOKING BACKWARD

FORTY YEARS AGO

May 31, 1883.—Because of the bad weather of yesterday afternoon, Memorial day exercises were held in the evening at Jannin's hall. The Janesville Catholic Corps band and our girls who were to strew the graves had seats in the parquette. The Rev. Horace Gates, Trinity church, gave the oration, while Mrs. J. B. Day gave a reading and Major S. S. Rockwood a poem.

THIRTY YEARS AGO

May 31, 1893.—Board of Supervisors of the county opened their sessions this morning at the court house. The equalization committee is hereafter to be made up of nine members instead of three. Bids on the county asylum will be opened at 10 o'clock tomorrow. Three new bridges are being asked for in different parts of the county.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

May 31, 1903.—Fitting tribute was paid to the departing dead at the cemeteries yesterday morning and afternoon. Rev. R. M. Vaughn gave the chief address at services in the afternoon at court house park, where a musical program and many readings were given.—Women's clubs here and other places in the state have started a move to have Indian mounds preserved.

TEN YEARS AGO

May 31, 1913.—Closing sessions of the rural mail letter carriers of the state were held early this afternoon. Green Day was chosen as the meeting place for next year and a Sturgeon Bay man was chosen president.—Congressman Cooper addressed the assembly of carriers at yesterday afternoon sessions.

Personal Health Service

By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author

A LICK OR A SPLASH

Dr. X. I must call him, is a bacteriologist of the highest standing. He has said something have recently said about the effects of exposure to disease germs. I was discussing the common drinking glass and endeavoring to white wash the old iron dipper that hangs by the spring and at the same time to give patrons of the soda fountain a scare about the glasses and spoons. I said that a pill from the common kitchen sink when once a thirsty and there is nothing else to drink from is comparatively safe because even indirect sunlight is inimical to germs and direct sunlight destroys them in a few moments. At some fountain a mere rinsing with cool or lukewarm water is about the extent of the cleaning of the utensils. Washing with hot water and soap or even hot water alone would prevent the danger of infection from the use of soda fountain ware.

Dr. X. reminds me that some diseases with service hours or days of exposure to diffuse daylight, that being true it would seem that I erred in whitewashing the common drinking glass. Scientifically, I am sure, I probably overdid the protective influence of sunlight. Practically, I still think one takes little or no chance of infection when drinking from the old dipper.

From some observations made in army camps in the course of the influenza, pandemic sanitarians have it seemed to be the custom of soldiers to shake out their towels and spread of respiratory infections. When we consider how frequently the hand unconsciously goes to the mouth, it is not surprising that a finger is moistened with saliva either intentionally or thoughtlessly. It is not unreasonable to believe that one may pick up various infections by shaking out towels and spreading them on a towel rack.

Practice anything like personal asepsis as a means of keeping well, it is just as important to wash the hands with soap and water before shaking around as it is to wash the hands with soap and water before eating or immediately upon reaching home from a visit to a theater or where the hands may have become contaminated by contact with surfaces contaminated by other hands. I am certainly not cranky about germs, yet I consider the old dipper a thing to study one's habits and to strive to acquire a technique of personal asepsis for infection.

Q. What part of the population of Oklahoma is native born? A. A. W. A. Less than 50 per cent of the population of Oklahoma were born within the borders of the state.

Q. What are annular rings in a cross section of a cut tree? M. S. H. A. The structure of the wood developed in the summer is different from that developed in autumn, and the alternation makes the lines of growth show plainly. Some tropical trees show no annular rings, probably indicating that the growth is continuous throughout the year.

Q. Are there any women drawing comic cartoons? C. C. G. A. Until last year there was only one woman in the comic strip field—Edwina Darrin. There is now one woman drawing comics—Abner Randell.

Q. How large is the Gullfann diamond? Where is it now? F. B. P. A. The Gullfann diamond, probably the largest in the world, weighed 2,350 carats—almost one and one-half pounds avaradpods. It measured 4x2x2 1/2 inches. It was cut into nine large and about 100 smaller ones.

Q. Are there any diamonds still in existence? They form part of the crown jewels of Great Britain and may be seen in the Tower of London.

Q. Where is the African plant similar to the milkweed called milky? A. W. H. A. The plant is a tropical climbing plant belonging to the milkweed family. It has a thick, white, fleshy stem and white, are spun into a very fine yarn, and its milky juice forms a kind of encaustic. It is used for this purpose in Burma.

Q. Is the dried Turkish tobacco different from American tobacco? T. C. J. A. Tobacco is native to America and it is not known how or when it was introduced to Europe. The fact is that it has been there it has lost many of its American characteristics. It has a much smaller, thinner leaf, and a pungent, spicy taste.

Q. Where does a trained letter can be used as a trained letter? K. L. G. A. In his work on "The Quintessence of Ibsenism," G. B. Shaw says that the famous Ibsen "Wild Duck" is "that a truth-teller who can not hold his tongue on occasion may do so much mischief as a whole university full of trained liars."

JAZZ TOO SHALLOW FOR GIRL OF 1923, DECLARES SPEAKER

West Chester, Pa.—Young women are beginning to find the jazz period too shallow and are turning to things of more healthy type. Dr. Frank Taxon Bye, professor of psychology and director of Dickinson seminary, said Thursday in an address at the commencement exercises of the institution. "The girl of today," said Dr. Bye, "has departed from the Victorian period, but she doesn't know what direction to take. The modern girl really is stepping out, although not fully aware of the fact."

"Women are reaching a more equal basis with men, doing the same things as men. This stage of growing equality may reach the point when proposals of marriage may come from women as well as men. Marriage will be regarded in the sense of a business partnership as well as a romantic phase of life."

Community of Interests

When you see a city in which the public utility companies are modern, progressive and prosperous, you may be sure that the city is modern, progressive and prosperous. The utilities naturally respond to liberal and broad-minded treatment, and in turn apply their great forces to advancing the city's growth and strength. This is real partnership. Utility service today enters so intimately into the affairs of almost every household, that anything which hurts the utilities is bound to hurt the community.

DIPLOMAT'S SON WORKS ON FARM

Herman J. Wiedfeldt.

Herman J. Wiedfeldt, son of Otto Wiedfeldt, German ambassador to the United States, is working as an ordinary field hand on Wisconsin farm for $3 a week. He is after practical experience to round out his college course.

also account for the fact that the theaters at night were filled. Good attractions were being shown. Crowds have been large all week at the Apollo, where Douglas Fairbanks in "Robin Hood" is showing, and the two addition days of this supreme attraction are expected to bring many more. Although you are out of the country, you can't miss it. It is a sell-out show. You missed it in weeks to come. It is the one achievement of 1934 in motion pictures. Three performances a week, daily and all proceeds are to go into the 1,500,000 fund for purchasing memorials for the victims.

A special Memorial day picture was seen at the Beverly theater, "Forget-Me-Not." It starred Bessie Love and Gareth Hughes, an excellent picture, and very popular. A very unfortunate love affair. It is a sad, but winsome picture, and will be repeated Thursday night. For Friday and Saturday that theater has booked an attraction that you will find of great interest, both for story and great novelty. It is a story with a "Madame Butterfly home but the greater attraction was to be the fact that it is all in nature. The picture done in this manner, a nothing has ever approached it. The line of the bridge, the Mountains and the Kentucky mountains are still. Other attractions will be given.

The Majestic is offering "The Fourteenth Love" Thursday, and "Friday's attraction will be "The Scarlet Star" with Herbert Rawlins, Wallace Reid's "The Ghost of a Smile" will be shown on Saturday.

Only this picture has not been seen in Jancsville previously.

PAY OCCUPATION DEBT TO YANKS? EUROPE SHOCKED SETTLEMENT BRINGS DARK CHAPTER TO CLOSE. ISSUE IS CLEAR Congress May Retain Alien Property to Satisfy Claims on Berlin.

By DAVID LAWRENCE. Copyright, 1923, by Janesville Daily Gazette.

Washington.—Settlement of the controversy over America's claim for the expenses of the army of occupation on the Rhine ends one of the most disagreeable chapters in American diplomacy. It has ended not only a real breach between the United States and allied powers but it probably has done already more harm toward the cause of international cooperation than anything since the war.

Legal Claim.—No doubt of the legality of the American claim for reimbursement has ever existed. The armistice agreements specifically provided that expenses for the occupying armies should be paid by Germany and should constitute a prior claim against Germany. The allies collected a certain sum but didn't reimburse America. The withdrawal of the American forces from the Rhine was as much due to the handling of the expense account as it was to the completion of the Ruhr.

Just why the United States should have had to battle for months with the diplomats of the European powers on a claim that was plainly established, has been a question and probably never will be. The impression that America was so wealthy that it could ignore a relatively small sum like $500,000,000, especially at a time when many millions of reparations were not being collected by the allies, dominated the minds of the Europeans and they confidently expected the United States to waive the matter. As it is, America doesn't get her share of the cash already collected by the allies for Rhine army expenses, but simply a promise of future payments.

Political Difficulties.—There also developed incidentally a serious political embarrassment for President Harding and the same controversy. The Republican National Committee's publicly headquarters hearing of the exasperation of some of the American officials over the attitude of the allies issued some caustic comments about the allies in which references to "crooked nations abroad and their attempts to 'bludge' the American people were conspicuous. The department of state heard about it and so did the president and the national committee headquarters was asked to withdraw the statement which it did with the public announcement that the department of state wanted it withdrawn.

The democratic national committee has had some partisan fun out of the episode, pointing out that discord reigns in republican ranks, and that the left hand doesn't know what the right hand is doing and so on. Chairman John T. Adams of the republican national committee is away from Washington. The publicity men he issued the ill-considered statement have had a free hand anyhow and have in recent weeks issued other statements which the administration itself might have wished to modify.

Satisfactory Settlement.—The president at his regular meeting with the correspondents on Friday brushed easily the matter as the republican publicity headquarters pointed to the satisfactory settlement of the main controversy over Rhine army expenses. He would like naturally to forget all about the outgivings of the national committee on the subject for it was an embarrassing episode. Out of it may come the fixing of more definite responsibility for the issuance of publicity statements under the auspices of the republican national committee.

Apart from the domestic phases of the controversy and the certain use which opponents of co-operation with Europe have been making of the allied attitude over a valid claim for expenses, there is another disappointment in connection with the diplomacy manifested in this case. It is the tendency of the allies to fight tooth and nail against the payment to America of any sums which might otherwise go to their reparations fund. This means a delay in the settlement of the claims of American citizens against Germany.

May Retain Property.—It may yet force the retention by congress of alien property or some plan whereby the income from these properties is made to pay American claims. Certainly the allies have shown that they consider all sums available from Germany to belong more locally to them for restoration of devastated territory and other war claims than to satisfy American pocketbooks. The legal battles over war claims will be with the allies and not Germany. And the time and trouble taken in settling the expenses of the American army for occupying the Rhine after the armistice—a work undertaken at the request of the allies and for moral effect and not military purposes—does not augur for an easy collection of American war claims.

INQUIRE INTO DEATH OF YET IN SANATORIUM

Chicago.—The self-inflicted death of a World War veteran after several weeks of treatment in Dr. George J. Deffenbacher's sanatorium at Lombard, Ill., formed a new consideration for authorities Thursday as an investigation into charges that two women and a man had died from the effects of dieting and cold water spraying methods practiced at the institution.

Harry Flucker committed suicide at the hospital in December, 1922, after he had become emaciated and delirious from treatment. The cause for nervous diseases resulting from war service, his father reported to officials of the state's attorney's office of DuPage county.

Like the other three patients who died, the elder Flucker said his son was made to take cold showers daily from a powerful garden hose stream and was given very little food.

ENFORCING KLAN LAW.—New York.—Refusing to consider seriously the challenges to its authority have been hurled by Ku Klux Klan leaders at a dozen meetings throughout the state Sunday, officials declared Monday they were preparing to enforce the state injunction law when it becomes effective Saturday.

OBITUARY

Raymond B. Fletcher

Raymond B. Fletcher of Worcester, Mass., vice president of the Raymond North State company of this city and after whom the company was named, died Saturday last in a hospital in Worcester from a fractured skull, the result of being thrown from his saddle horse. Mr. Fletcher was a brilliant young lawyer and public speaker and was the only child of Hon. Edward F. Fletcher, a retired captain of Worcester, who for many years was mayor of his city. Young Mr. Fletcher leaves a wife and two children, a girl of six years and a son a few months old. Mr. Fletcher was last in Janesville the day of the great storm, March 12, this year.

Funeral of Harold George Kennedy.—Funeral services for Harold George Kennedy were held from the home of his parents at 9 A. M. Monday and from St. Augustin's church at 10, where regular high mass was said by the Rev. M. McCarthy, assisted by the Rev. Charles Olson, Janesville, and the Rev. Mr. McDermott, Evansville, Ind. The house was filled to capacity, friends coming from far and near.

Mr. Kennedy was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Matt Kennedy, born in this village, July 23, 1892, and had made his home here until he entered the army on Oct. 2, 1918. He was mustered out after 18 months' service on April 11, 1919, having been a member of the 12th Central Postal Directory until March 21, 1919. He went across seas with Company D, 33rd Machine Gun Battalion, 8th Infantry Division, and was transferred to Company K, 10th Infantry, and was made a corporal. He returned with this company unit mustered out.

Since his return he had been engaged in road construction until about three weeks ago, when he was obliged to discontinue on account of illness. He was taken to Mercy hospital, where he submitted to two serious operations, the first a tonsillectomy and the last one for abscess of the brain by a specialist from Chicago. The latter took place Tuesday morning, and Saturday following the end came.

Surviving are his parents, two sisters, Mrs. Herman Dush and Mrs. Kustoval, two brothers, William and Alex, all of this place. George Devine, Janesville; John Devine, Beloit; and Charles Devine, Grand Forks, N. Dak., are uncles of the deceased.

Honorary pallbearers were: James Quinn, John Euteneier, James Devine, Homer Emmert, Beloit; and Harry Johnson, all members of his company. The coffin was covered with a United States flag and was borne by John Kemp, Ernest Sill, Verthorn, Edwin Lantz, Raymond Peterhoff, Frank Gahagan and Fred Wilcox.

Burial was in the Catholic cemetery at Janesville.

Among those who came from out of town were: Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Devine, Grand Forks, N. Dak.; Mrs. John Collins, Evansville, Ind.; Mr. and Mrs. John P. Murray, Miss Margaret Judd, Beloit; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Devine, Grand Forks, N. Dak.; Mrs. George Wilson, Milton, Ind.; David Hutton, Paul Savers, William Murphy, Milwaukee; Dennis McCarty, Porter; Mrs. P. W. Ryan and son, William; Mr. and Mrs. George Judge, Mrs. Thomas Dulin, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Finley, and John and Max Lyons, all of Janesville.

CARLE ASKS FOR MEMORIAL HALL

State G. A. R. Commander Gives Chief Address of Patriotic Program Here.

Memorial day in Janesville was observed in a most befitting manner. From early in the morning, when reveille was heard, and all during the morning, when people joined the parade and heard exercises attendant upon decorating soldiers' graves at the cemeteries, or decorated graves of their own beloved, through the noon hour and several hours of the afternoon, until lowering of the flag at the high school directly after a program of songs and talks in the auditorium, the spirit was one of devout tribute to the dead heroes of America's wars. The solemn occasion was observed in an appropriate way, simple but impressive.

A short noon recess followed the morning exercises at the cemeteries and those at the honor roll at the park on South Main street, the latter being served by the Service Star Legion. A basket of flowers had been placed there by the auxiliary to the Legion.

Flower Bed Dedicated.—At one o'clock, with a large number gathered about, the Service Star Legion again consecrated the flower bed at the Corn Exchange, which has been made into the shape of a five-pointed star and planted with yellow geraniums in honor of Gold Star mothers. Here services opened with invocation by the Rev. Dean J. Ryan, after which Mrs. P. J. Anderson sang the "Gold Star" hymn, which she also gave at the honor roll services in the morning. The Rev. R. P. Case, Methodist church, gave a touching tribute to all Gold Star mothers, telling some accounts of the great sacrifices mothers made. After services here, at which Mrs. Dora Hermann had charge, five little girls dressed in yellow, who had stood at the five star points, sang "America," and placed a flag in each point.

Two Bands in Parade.—Shortly after two o'clock the parade formed on North Main street, marched to Court and up Pleasant to Milwaukee, then down Milwaukee and Main streets to the high school. The parade was led by C. H. Cox, Spanish War veteran, also in charge of services later at the high school. With him were E. C. Bauman and J. R. Dixon, Police and fire departments followed, after which came veterans of the Civil War, Spanish American and World War, in automobiles and on foot. Both the Bowler City and the high school bands played, one at the head of the parade, the other toward the rear. The parade was wound up by women's orders, school children and a long line of automobiles, following the parade to the exercises at the high school.

With an immense flag hung at the rear of the stage, on which sat all those to participate in the program, exercises at the high school were held before an audience of more than 400 people. Veterans had seats of honor in the front rows.

Mothers Are Honored.—Invocation was given by the Rev. J. E. Ryan of St. Patrick's church, and the audience sang "America." Albert Nott, Spanish War veteran, gave a short history of Lincoln's masterpiece, "The Gettysburg Address," and concluded by giving the address. A quartet, composed of Alfred Olson, E. J. Van Pool, E. K. Donno and J. C. Kolton, sang two numbers, and Mr. Olson also gave a solo.

Mothers came in for a much honor the entire day. Ralph Kamp, past commander of Richard Ellis post, American Legion, in his talk at the high school, paid a tribute to the mothers who gave their sons and who made "America what it is today." Mr. Kamp was applauded a number of times in his plans to treat aliens now as the nation treated slackers during the war, and to stop such organizations as the one recently started to stop all wars by agreeing not to join any.

Capt. Charles Hanson, Spanish war veteran, gave interesting reminiscences of the war in which he led the Janesville company. He told of mobilization here, of leaving, and of some of the hardships and good times experienced during the war.

State Commander J. M. Carle of the G. A. R. gave a stirring address appropriate to the day and occasion, paying tribute to mothers—the queen of the home—analyzing some of the troubles America is experiencing, and sprinkling his talk throughout with the spirit in honor of Gold Star mothers. Here services opened with invocation by the Rev. Dean J. Ryan, after which Mrs. P. J. Anderson sang the "Gold Star" hymn, which she also gave at the honor roll services in the morning. The Rev. R. P. Case, Methodist church, gave a touching tribute to all Gold Star mothers, telling some accounts of the great sacrifices mothers made. After services here, at which Mrs. Dora Hermann had charge, five little girls dressed in yellow, who had stood at the five star points, sang "America," and placed a flag in each point.

"The trouble with America is that we have too much coal and not enough heart," he said. "We have too much of an automobile mind. We have too much radio, too much airplanes, and do not pay enough attention to the Golden Rule."

Carle Asks Memorial Hall.—Mr. Carle in a humorous way told about the house, how long it took for Civil war veterans to get theirs, and how small it was when obtained. He also made an earnest plea for a memorial hall.

"It is not for ourselves that we want the hall," he said, speaking for the Civil war veterans, "for we are case-hardened. We have been promised a hall time after time, but we have now become so accustomed to paying rent for the hall we have, and other organizations must be similarly hardened, that we do not mind continuing in it. But for the sake of these Spanish war veterans, still young, and for those American Legion boys, please, people of Janesville, build a memorial hall. And you needn't build one to cost more than $150,000 either."

Lowering of the flag at the high school grounds followed exercises in the two-hour services.

"The trouble with America is that Star-Spangled Banner" and benediction by the Rev. R. P. Case.

PRESIDENT GUEST OF 8,000 "KIDS"

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Washington.—President Harding, members of the cabinet and ranking officers of the army, navy and marine corps were invited guests for the annual (choral) concert Thursday by Washington school children. Eight thousand children composed the chorus which was supplemented on the program by selections by the Marine band.

MUSIC CONTEST AT RIVERSIDE SCHOOL

Riverside school, town of Janesville, will close Friday with a picnic under auspices of the Rock River Community club. A feature will be a music memory contest at 11 o'clock conducted by Mrs. Florence S. Hyde, Gazette Good Times club editor. This school secured the full set of 7 contest records and several other records by getting new and renewal subscriptions to the Gazette. School directors and members of the community club participated heavily in the enterprise. Miss Alice M. Millbrandt is the teacher. Although they are having their own last day picnic, this school plans to participate in the joint play-day being arranged for the schools in Rock, Harmony and Janesville townships.

Think of Oil in Terms of 1923

IN considering the oil business as it is today, we must think in terms of 1923 and not in terms of 1913 — which was before such unheard of impetus had been given to the automotive industry.

In 1913 there were but 1,287,000 motor vehicles registered in the United States, while the year ending December 31, 1922, saw a total registration of 12,239,114 — an increase of 900%.

The magnitude of the oil business is so vast that no man can visualize it clearly. It is difficult to picture the needs of 12 1/4 million automobiles, to say nothing of the vast gallonage needed to supply tractors, stationary gas engines, and the demand for gasoline coming from the arts and industries generally.

The problem of supplying 12 1/4 million cars is quite different from the problem confronting the industry a decade ago when but 1 1/4 million cars were in commission.

The adaptation to a changing situation meant the making over of the petroleum industry.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) has retained its leadership by expanding its facilities both in the manufacture and distribution rapidly enough to meet the insistent demand for greater service.

During the past ten years the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) has grown as the need for its products and service has grown. This ever-increasing demand for petroleum products has made it necessary for the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) to expand its facilities to an extraordinary degree. Yet, with its multiplied facilities, the Company finds that all its energies are absorbed in meeting the demand for its products from 30 million people in the ten Middle Western States it serves.

While proud of the service it has rendered in the past, the Standard Oil Company today is thinking in terms of 1923 and the years to come.

Standard Oil Company (Indiana) 910 S. Michigan Ave., Chicago 3213
